

Fifth Grade Summer Work

In preparation for next school year, we have come up with some reading and writing activities that we would like you to complete this school year. It is very important that we continue to practice our skills over the summer. The first task is a Summer Reading Log, and the second task is a 1-2 page essay.

Make summer reading goals for yourself and then try and see if you can reach your goal. My goal for you is four books on your reading level. If you are reading super thick books 400-500 pages, then you can stick to two books. The reading pack also has some fun reading activities that you can print and complete if you would like.

I'd also like you to work on a personal narrative story. This story is intended to be a small moment story. You could write about a favorite summer moment, a time you were excited or scared, or any other moment from your life that you would like to share. Think about all of the things you've been taught about great writers and include them in your story.

Essay: You are welcome to type or write your essay. You will be asked to bring your essay to school during the first week of school, as we will be using it to help us start our first writing unit.
