Language Immersion

- ◇ K-5 students: half of instruction time in English and target language.
- ◇ Middle School: courses taught in English with options for high school credits in foreign language.

In addition to achieving higher proficiency in a second language than traditional foreign language students, research shows that DLI students show higher academic achievement overall, performing as well as or better than English-only students on standardized tests.

DLI students typically develop greater cognitive flexibility, demonstrate increased attention and memory, and have superior problem-solving skills.
